

Indigenous Employment Policy

Goodline respect and employ aboriginal and indigenous people because we believe in providing opportunities to give back to the community. We believe that having a diversified workforce enriches our working culture.

Goodline has set out to build up the trust in the communities in which we operate through respect for the traditions, its customs, its culture and dignity.

The training and employment of aboriginal and local indigenous people provides economic and job opportunities within these communities. Our focus is on long term full time employment where all employees are paid the same wage rates and conditions for comparable work.

This policy statement and its objectives are to be displayed in a prominent position in all Goodline site and project offices. This display serves to demonstrate to our clients, colleagues and the public our commitment to achieving our objectives.
