

Training Policy

Goodline is committed to continuous improvement in the way we do business and the manner in which we support and encourage our employees to develop their skills. Our training objectives include:

- To create a culture that values training and development so that all employees have the opportunity to reach their potential;
- Encourage loyal and long service employees through staff training and development; and
- Deliver increased value to our client customers by more efficient, skilled and competent employees.

To achieve this, Goodline:

- Inducts all employees clearly communicating our values and expectations,
- Conducts regular performance reviews to identify training and development needs to meet individual and Goodline business objectives, and
- Encourages individuals to train and develop themselves to meet Goodline's needs and to meet their own potential.

This policy statement and its objectives are to be displayed in a prominent position in all Goodline site and project offices. This display serves to demonstrate to our clients, colleagues and the public our commitment to achieving our objectives.

John Kennedy
Managing Director

Date 22 November 2010

